This training provides information for case managers and therapists to recognize when our elders need specialized care and how to properly refer and link to medically necessary services. This training includes ways to improve quality of life for elders and encourages their connection to natural support, with an emphasis on children and adolescents. Attendees will apply new knowledge to writing an integrated care plan for the elderly population.

Training Objectives:

- Define age by generation and identify signs of aging.
- Define agism and learn how to recognize it in various settings.
- Describe various integrated health issues that affect the older population.
- Identify ways to assist elders through life transitions including appropriate coping skills or referrals to include in the IPOS.
- Describe interventions and evidence-based practices to incorporate in an integrated person-centered plan.
- Discuss how a natural support system, especially children and youth, can improve quality of life for the elderly.
